

WHAT TO SAY WHEN SOMEONE'S GRIEVING

Presented by Military & Family Life Counselors

OBJECTIVES

Participants will learn:

- The nature and stages of grief
- Ways to assist the bereaved
- What to say and what not to say to a bereaved person

AGENDA

- Introduction
- Definition of Grief
- Stages of Grief and Loss
- Emotional and Physical Symptoms of Grief
- What to Say and What Not to Say
- Tips for Helping a Grieving Person
- When the Bereaved Should Seek Help
- Taking Care of Yourself

INTRODUCTION

- When someone is experiencing grief, it can be difficult to witness
- Frequently, our instinct is to try to fix the problem and make their pain stop
- While you can't fix the problem or take away their pain, you can provide comfort and support
- Sometimes the best thing we can do is just listen and make ourselves available

DEFINITION OF GRIEF

- Grief is a natural response to loss
- It's the emotional suffering you feel when something or someone you love is taken away

NOTE: In addition to grieving the loss of a loved one, it is also possible to grieve the loss of someone you never knew

STAGES OF GRIEF & LOSS

- Denial and Shock
- Anger and Emotional Releases
- Protest/Bargaining
- Guilt
- Depression/Loneliness
- Acceptance
- Hope

EMOTIONAL SYMPTOMS OF GRIEF

- Numbness, the sense that none of this is real – you're just imagining it
- Expecting the deceased to come back and be able to resume life as usual
- A sense of anger, injustice, or helplessness
- Feelings of emptiness, self-accusation, or despair
- Guilt – if only you had been there, done more, etc.

PHYSICAL SYMPTOMS OF GRIEF

- Difficulty going to sleep or waking in the middle of the night
- Difficulty paying attention or remembering things as well as you did before your loss
- Weight loss or gain; over or under eating
- Headaches, chest pain, or racing heart
- Upset stomach or digestive problems

WHAT TO SAY

- “I’m so sorry.”
- “I know this is a terrible loss for you.”
- “I don’t know exactly what to say, but I want you to know how much I care.”
- “Why don’t I come over and make a list of what needs to be done?”
- “I will keep you and your family in my thoughts and prayers.”

WHAT NOT TO SAY

- “I know exactly how you feel.”
- “It’s God’s will.”
- “He is in a better place.”
- “At least they didn’t suffer -- or -- At least they’re out of their misery.”
- “Think about all the good things in your life.”
- “You need to get out more, make new friends, go to church, etc.”

TIPS FOR HELPING THE BEREAVED

- Accept and acknowledge their feelings
- Be comfortable with the silence
- Let them tell their story
- Don't minimize the loss
- Be patient
- Offer to help out, but be specific
- Keep in contact

CONTINUED

- Realize that their grief may last a very long time and that everyone grieves differently
- Accept that you don't "get over" the death of someone you care about – you just learn to move on
- Don't worry if you don't know what to say
- Let them know their thoughts and feelings are normal
- Continue with support after the funeral

WHEN THE BEREAVED SHOULD SEEK HELP

Encourage them to seek help if they are:

- Having difficulty functioning in daily life
- Increasing use of alcohol or drugs
- Withdrawing from others
- Having constant feelings of hopelessness
- Talking about dying or suicide

TAKING CARE OF YOURSELF

- Seek balance in your life
- Have a “battle buddy”
- Accept help and support
- Participate in recreational activities
- Spend time with friends
- Exercise
- Eat well
- Get plenty of rest

WHEN TO SEEK HELP

If coping methods don't work, and the stress is affecting your ability to function, don't hesitate to seek help from a Chaplain, Military Community Services or Behavioral Health Services.

SUMMARY

- Grief is a natural response to loss
- While there are several stages of grief, they do not follow in a specific order or have a specific time line
- Sometimes just listening and being present is enough
- It's important to take care of yourself when you are supporting a bereaved person
- Seek help if coping methods don't work and the stress is interfering with your ability to function
